The Sixteenth of May

Ten in the morning

Ed Kaplan Family Institute for Innovation and Tech Entrepreneurship

elcome to Illinois Institute of Technology's 151st Commencement Exercise. The university community extends cordial greetings to the families and friends who are celebrating this culmination of years of formal study.

For 1,969 students, today's ceremony officially recognizes their academic accomplishments during the 2019–20 academic year and inaugurates a new era in their lives. With a broad foundation of both intellectual capability and experiential learning that characterizes an Illinois Tech education, these graduates also take with them a sound understanding of contemporary society and its values as they join thousands of other Illinois Tech alumni.

About Illinois Institute of Technology

In 1890, when advanced education was often reserved for society's elite, Chicago minister Frank Wakely Gunsaulus delivered what came to be known as the "Million Dollar Sermon" near the site Illinois Institute of Technology (Illinois Tech) now occupies. Gunsaulus said that with a million dollars he would build a school where students of all backgrounds could prepare for meaningful roles in a changing industrial society. Philip Danforth Armour, a Chicago meatpacking industrialist and grain merchant, heard the sermon and came to share the minister's vision, agreeing to finance the endeavor with the stipulation that Gunsaulus become the first president of Armour Institute.

When Armour Institute opened in 1893, it offered professional courses in engineering, chemistry, architecture, and library science. Illinois Tech was created in 1940 by the merger of Armour Institute with Lewis Institute (est. 1895), a West Side college that offered liberal arts as well as science and engineering courses. The Institute of Design, founded in 1937, merged with Illinois Tech in 1949.

In 1969, Illinois Tech became one of the few technology-based universities with a law school when Chicago-Kent College of Law, founded in 1887, became a part of the university. Stuart School of Business was added in 1969 with a gift from the estate of Lewis Institute alumnus and Chicago financier Harold Leonard Stuart. Midwest College of Engineering, founded in 1967, joined the university in 1986, forming the nucleus for Illinois Tech's west suburban campus.

Today, Illinois Institute of Technology is a private, Ph.D.-granting university with programs in engineering, science, architecture, law, human sciences, design, business, and applied technology. More than 6,515 graduate and undergraduate students study here, coming from all 50 states and Washington, D.C., and from 97 countries.

Scientists and engineers from Illinois Tech are responsible for some of the world's most important technological advances; Illinois Tech architects have shaped the skylines of cities globally; and Chicago-Kent College of Law alumni are impacting the legal system.

Three miles south of the Chicago Loop, Illinois Tech's Mies Campus was designed by renowned architect Ludwig Mies van der Rohe in 1940, and Illinois Tech's 19 Mies buildings are the highest concentration in the world. The American Institute of Architects designated Mies Campus as one of the 200 most important works of architecture in the country, and Mies' S. R. Crown Hall, which houses the College of Architecture, was granted National Historic Landmark status in 2001.

Continuing Illinois Tech's tradition of cutting-edge design, the university added two new buildings in 2003—The McCormick Tribune Campus Center, designed by Pritzker Prize-winning architect Rem Koolhaas, and State Street Village Residence Hall, designed by Helmut Jahn, named one of the Ten Most Influential Living American Architects by the American Institute of Architects. The Ed Kaplan Family Institute for Innovation and Tech Entrepreneurship, designed by John Ronan, acclaimed architect and professor of architecture at Illinois Tech, opened in 2018.

Illinois Tech has three additional campuses. The Conviser Law Center is home to Chicago-Kent College of Law and Stuart School of Business. The Daniel F. and Ada L. Rice Campus in Wheaton, Illinois, offers graduate and undergraduate courses and houses the School of Applied Technology. The Moffett Campus, in Bedford Park, Illinois, is the home of the Institute for Food Safety and Health. Illinois Tech also has state-of-the-art distance learning programs.

Academic Regalia

Much of the American academic ceremonial apparel is derived from that worn at British universities, particularly Oxford University. When Oxford was granted a charter in 1241, its members wore clerical garb because of the close connection between the university and the church. Academic apparel for colleges and universities in America was first introduced at Williams College in 1887. The Intercollegiate Commission drafted the first uniform code in 1895.

The bachelor's gown is untrimmed, with long pointed sleeves, and is worn closed. The master's gown has long, crescent-shaped sleeves and may be worn open or closed. The doctor's gown has velvet facing down the front and three velvet bars on the bell-shaped sleeves. The velvet is either black or the color of the major field of study. For years, most gowns were black, but today most American institutions have followed the British custom of using red or college colors.

The hood is the most important and distinctive feature of the American system. It was originally intended as a head cover and shoulder cape. The color of the trim indicates the degree field; for example, purple is law, orange is engineering, lavender is architecture. The length of the hood and the width of the trim indicate the degree earned, the doctor's hood being the longest and having the widest trim. The color or colors of the hood lining indicate the degree-granting institution. The Illinois Institute of Technology hood lining has the school colors, a single gray chevron on a scarlet field.
